

Divorce and legal separation pricing

Flat-rate services. Clear pricing.

A clear price for eligible California divorce or legal separation paperwork. Compare what each service includes, how payments work and which costs are separate.

A set service fee for the work we accept. Court and third-party costs are separate. Additional revisions or work outside scope require your authorization.

How is this different from hiring a lawyer?

Fast Divorce

You make the legal choices. We prepare and organize the included paperwork at your direction. Our flat fee covers the work we accept. We do not give legal advice or represent you in court.

A divorce lawyer

A lawyer can explain your rights, advise you on your choices, and represent you. Lawyers may charge by the hour or a flat fee. Ask what their fee covers.

These are different services. If you need legal advice, speak with a lawyer.

Fast Divorce® is a Legal Document Assistant service, not a law firm. You make the legal decisions and represent yourself. We prepare documents at your specific direction and do not give legal advice or represent you in court.

I am not an attorney. I can only provide self help services at your specific direction.

Compare the two services

Both services include the accepted document work through the judgment stage. The difference is the detail involved and the number of included rounds of draft changes.

Same selected service with either payment choice. No package is selected for you.

Super Fast Divorce®

For straightforward uncontested divorce or legal separation paperwork based on facts and terms you have already decided, within the scope we accept.

$1,799 paid in full at enrollment

Or three monthly payments of $649 — $1,947 total.

Credit card on file required.

The standard service fee is $1,947. Paying in full at enrollment includes a $148 discount. Both payment choices cover the same Super Fast service.

- Preparation of selected documents from your information and written directions.
- Included filing and standard service coordination.
- One combined round of draft changes within the accepted scope.
- Included judgment paperwork and active closeout.
- Human support and Client Portal access after acceptance and invitation.

Support orders, support calculations, detailed parenting plans, and real-estate or retirement division are outside Super Fast's scope.

You do not need to choose the larger service simply because you have children or have already filed. The requested paperwork, case history, and service requirements matter. Our team can explain the scope of each service; a licensed attorney can advise you about legal choices.

How the payments work

The first monthly payment is due at paid-service enrollment, not the initial application. The next two monthly due dates appear in your signed payment schedule. There is no added installment fee, interest, or finance charge under these plans.

A credit card is required for a payment plan.

Payment plans require a valid credit card on file. Your first payment is due at paid-service enrollment after review, not the initial application. You authorize payments 2 and 3 to be charged automatically on the dates shown in your payment schedule.

Payment choice	Due at enrollment	Later service payments	Total service fee
Super Fast paid in full	$1,799	None	$1,799
Super Fast monthly	$649	Two monthly payments of $649	$1,947
Complete paid in full	$2,799	None	$2,799
Complete monthly	$999	Two monthly payments of $999	$2,997

These are service fees. Court and other outside costs may also be due, as explained in your signed records.

Before judgment work begins: your entire account balance, including remaining service payments and authorized outside costs, must be zero. This applies before judgment preparation, assembly, review, quality checks, finalization, or submission begins.

For example, if your paperwork is ready for the judgment stage before your last scheduled payment, the remaining balance must be paid before that work starts. Choosing monthly payments does not change this requirement.

What both services cover

Meet Charlie and the team

We prepare the selected documents from your facts and directions, organize drafts for your review, and coordinate the included filing and service steps. We also prepare the accepted financial-disclosure and judgment paperwork. Your agreement sets the precise work included in your case.

After acceptance and invitation, the Client Portal gives you a place for tasks, requested records, drafts, and messages. If the court enters judgment during active processing and closeout, we deliver available final records and coordinate the certified-copy request included in your agreement. The number of copies, covered costs, and any separate charges follow your signed records.

You provide complete information, make your legal decisions, review drafts, return the required signatures, and pay the agreed fees and costs. We explain what the team needs next. The court controls its requirements, decisions, and timing.

See How It Works

What you may pay separately

Some expenses are paid to the court, a delivery provider, or another professional. They depend on the work your case requires. We identify applicable charges before you authorize them.

- Court and filing costs: court filing fees and electronic filing or provider charges.
- Delivery and notice costs: private or special service of papers, publication or posting, newspaper charges, postage, and courier costs.
- Document costs: notarization, translation, and copy or certification charges outside any written allowance.
- Separate professional work: legal advice, mediation, tax advice, valuation, retirement-plan division orders such as QDROs, and other specialist services.

Not every case needs every item. Preparing a document or coordinating a request does not necessarily include the court or vendor's charge. Your signed records identify any included allowances.

If court fees are difficult to afford: you can ask the court for a fee waiver. If requested, we can prepare the request from your information within the accepted scope. The court decides whether to grant it. A court fee waiver does not waive Fast Divorce's service fee. Read the California Courts fee-waiver guide.

If you need help accessing an application or reading the service information, contact our team so we can discuss available assistance.

When drafts or circumstances change

A combined revision round means sending your requested changes together so we can apply them in one pass. Super Fast includes one round; Complete includes up to three. The changes must stay within the accepted scope.

An additional round may be offered for $195 with Super Fast or $295 with Complete, with your separate authorization. Other work outside scope requires a separate written quote or agreement when available.

If the court returns paperwork, we review the notice and the work needed under your agreement. A correction, a new request, and a change in case circumstances are not always the same kind of work. We explain any proposed additional work and fee before you authorize it. A different package is not selected or charged automatically.

Situations that may sound familiar

These are examples to explain the services, not client stories or a determination that a service fits your case.

Your decisions are made and the paperwork is straightforward

You have the information ready and want help turning your written decisions into the included court papers. Super Fast may cover that work. Compare its scope before choosing.

You have more detail to put into writing

You and your spouse have decided on parenting schedules, support, or property terms, but there is more to document and review. Complete offers broader document work and more included rounds of changes. It does not include negotiating those terms or advising you what to accept.

You started a case and need help with the remaining papers

You filed earlier, then stopped because you were unsure what paperwork remained. An eligible existing case may fit either service after review. Tell us what has already been filed and whether the court has sent anything back. Read the Already Filed requirements.

Applying and changing your mind

Start online with an application for review; an introductory call is not required. This first application collects no payment and does not complete your service contract. If the work fits and you choose to proceed, review the required notices, agreements, service scope and full price before the separate signatures and payment steps.

We review your submission before accepting the requested work. Confirmation of receipt does not mean your matter has been accepted, a case has been filed, or a divorce or legal separation has been approved. If we cannot accept the selected service, we explain the options and handle any adjustment or refund under your contract and applicable law. A different service requires your authorization.

Cancellation rights: the required LDA Contract includes the right to cancel within 24 hours after you and Fast Divorce both sign it. Read Part III for the full rights and methods. It explains the limited rules for keeping fees for work actually, necessarily, and reasonably performed with your knowing and express written consent. Other cancellations and refunds follow your signed agreements and applicable law. We accept written requests by email or through the Client Portal once you have access.

A few questions about the price

Does paying more make the court finish sooner?

No. Complete provides broader document work and more revision support. Neither service changes the court's timing or California's minimum waiting period for ending a marriage. Read more about timing.

Does the monthly option include less help?

No. The selected service has the same scope whether you pay in full or monthly. Paying in full at enrollment receives the stated discount. The full account balance must be paid before judgment work begins.

Is a joint petition a separate package?

No. A joint petition is a way of starting a court case, not a third Fast Divorce service. Either service may support that starting path when the requested work fits its scope. You make the legal choices; the team can explain the service requirements.

What if we still disagree about the terms?

Our service fees cover document preparation and the included administrative work. Legal advice, negotiation, mediation, and court representation are separate. A licensed attorney can advise you about your rights; a mediator can help willing spouses discuss terms.

Take the next step when you are ready

Compare the service details, or ask us about something that is unclear. You can begin online when you are ready.
